1. How to create your EHRI Profile

Before starting, please make sure you have agreed to the 'EHRI Data Policy' by ticking the small box on the left hand side of the window, and then clicking on 'I agree'.

The EHRI portal offers access to information on Holocaust-related archival material held in institutions across Europe and beyond. For more information on the EHRI project visit <https://ehri-project.eu>.

Once you have agreed to the 'EHRI Data policy', please click 'Sign in/Register' (top right), click the 'Register' tab and register for the EHRI Portal by filling in the required fields below.

Tick the small square to the left of the 'Terms & Conditions' at the bottom of the page and then click the 'Register' button.

Tips & tricks: You can also register with your Facebook, Yahoo and Open ID account.

After registering, you can 'Sign in' into the EHRI Portal, using your email & the password you created in the previous step.

You will arrive at your 'Profile page' on the EHRI Portal.

Please feel free to use the 'Edit profile' button. Beyond building a digital research infrastructure, the EHRI Project is building a human network, and we would like to know you (including a profile picture if possible).

Tips & tricks: The 'EHRI Portal' is one of the most important outputs of the 'EHRI Project'. Therefore, before starting your work, give yourself a bit of time to explore and to learn more about other people in EHRI.

1.1. The EHRI Portal

The EHRI Portal is built around three major hierarchical elements ‘Countries’, ‘Archival Institutions’, and ‘Archival Descriptions’. For a short introduction, please see this video <https://training.ehri-project.eu/unit/7-ehri-portal-manual> and this online course <https://training.ehri-project.eu/unit/7-ehri-portal-manual>.

In the next pages we will explain How to create Archival institutions, Archival Descriptions, Authority Records, and Access Points, but first here is an additional introduction to the EHRI Portal.

The EHRI portal offers access to information on Holocaust-related archival material held in institutions across Europe and beyond. For more information on the EHRI project visit <https://ehri-project.eu>.

Countries

EHRI national reports provide an overview of the Second World War and Holocaust history as well as of the archival situation in the covered countries.

Browse 57 country reports.

Archival Institutions

An inventory of archival institutions that hold Holocaust-related material.

Browse 2,006 archival institutions in 51 countries.

Archival Descriptions

Electronic descriptions and finding aids of Holocaust-related archival material.

Browse 235,151 archival descriptions in 640 institutions.

1.2. Countries

Each country has a dedicated country report. To access this page just click on the country name.

Country reports provide information about the Holocaust history of and the archival situation in that country, as well as a summary of EHRI's research work conducted on the respective country so far and an extensive report of that work. For more information about the structure, length and purpose of the country reports, please read the introduction to the country reports on the EHRI website (https://www.ehri-project.eu/country\_reports).

Below the country report, there is a search box for archival institutions situated within this country, as well as a possibility to browse archival institutions in this country. You can further explore the archival descriptions within these archival institutions.

Tips & tricks: We recommend you read all the information listed in the 'country profile page'. However, if you are just interested in a specific section of a country profile, click on the section's name under Contents.

Belgium

History

Belgium was invaded by German forces on 10 May 1940, and it surrendered on 28 May on the orders of King Leopold III. The King stayed in Belgium, but the Prime Minister and many cabinet members fled to London, where they set up a government-in-exile. The German occupiers formed a military administration (for Belgium and Northern France), led by Alexander von Falkenhausen, which was replaced by a civil administration in July 1944. Belgium was liberated in September of that year, although the fighting and bombing continued until May 1945.

During the occupation, German orders resulted in the registration of about 57,000 Jews in Belgium, out of a total Belgian population of over 8 million. Of those Jews, 10 percent at the most were Belgian citizens; the others were mostly recent immigrants from Eastern and Central Europe. Over 90 percent of the Jewish population resided in Brussels and Antwerp. Shortly after the German invasion of 10 May 1940, the Belgian government arrested a few thousand German (and Austrian) nationals, including Jews, and sent them to camps in France. The Jews among them were included in the deportations from France. Anti-Jewish legislation was enacted in October 1940 and became worse in May 1941, when the economic plundering of the Jews began. In April 1941, a pogrom took place in Antwerp, organised by local anti-Jewish organisations. In May 1942, the Yellow Star became obligatory. Then, in June 1942, Jews were summoned to present themselves in the new transit camp Dossin in Mechelen (a town between Antwerp and Brussels) through an Arbeitseinsatzbefehl (work order). In the summer of 1942, the German police forces and their collaborators actively started looking for Jews, with large raids taking place in Brussels and Antwerp. The deportations began on 4 August 1942 and lasted until 31 July 1944. A total of 26 convoys left the Dossin camp, mainly to Auschwitz, with some convoys going to Bergen-Belsen and Vittel in France. Overall, more than 25,000 victims were deported. The vast majority perished in the camps.

Archival Situation

The National Archives of Belgium and the State Archives in the Provinces, in short, the State Archives, are a federal academic establishment that forms part of the Belgium Federal Science Policy Office. The institution includes the National Archives in Brussels, which holds records of the Ministries and the Foreign Police, and 18 State Archives that are distributed throughout the country. In addition to the state archives, there are collections in private archives and museums.

CEGESOMA, the Centre for Documentation and Research on War and Contemporary Society, is a federal research centre and was founded in 1969. It holds important Holocaust collections, such as the archives of the Devisenschuttkommando, the records of the trial against von Falkenhausen, the Tätigkeitsberichte of the Military Administration and important files from the former Military Prosecutor's Office. The Directorate-General for War Victims is an institution of the Federal Public

1.4. Archival Descriptions

The EHRI Portal provides Holocaust-related archival descriptions.

Archival descriptions can be searched through the general search box, searched or browsed via 'archival descriptions' or, if an archival institution has archival descriptions of its holdings on the EHRI Portal, these can be searched or browsed below the description of the particular archive on its archival institution entry page in the EHRI Portal.

2. How to create Archival Institutions

In order to be able to work in the EHRI portal, you need to receive access to the ‘admin page’. This needs to be done by an EHRI project administrator (please contact by email). Once access has been granted, you will see the additional words ‘Admin Site’ on the top-right of the Portal webpage.

When you click on “Admin site”, you will be directed to the work environment of the EHRI Portal.

Tips & tricks: Work in the EHRI Portal, such as adding and editing content, is only possible through the EHRI Admin site. Therefore, please make sure you click on the Admin site button. Please ensure that you see admin written after .eu/ in the browser address line. <https://portal.ehri-project.eu/admin> allows you to perform your work in the portal. Please note that except for when you decide to hide your description via ‘set visibility’ on the right-hand side of the page, all your work on the Admin page will immediately be reflected in the public version of the EHRI portal. If you are curious to see what your work looks like ‘from the outside’, just remove admin/ in the browser, e.g. <https://portal.ehri-project.eu/admin/institutions/us-005551>. If your recent changes are not yet visible, please refresh the page. In order to return to the work environment, simply type admin/ again after .eu/ and press enter.

Archival institutions can be created only in relation to a specific country. In order to add a new institution, go to the More menu and select Countries:

Tips & tricks: You can change the way the portal displays items by clicking on one of: Relevance, ID/Code, Name, Recently Updated, Detail. Please feel free to explore all of these options and choose the one which accommodates your current work best.

Search for the country in which you want to create an archival institution. In this example, we have decided to work on Belgium.

After you click on 'Search', you will see the link to the Belgium page, where you can see the Belgium Country Report, as previously discussed. Click 'Create institution' on the right side of the page under 'Actions'.

3. How to create Archival Descriptions

3.1. Top-level archival descriptions

Before you start creating a Collection, please make sure you are working in your Admin profile. A good idea would be to review the information and tips & tricks described earlier.

Collections are held by archival institutions, therefore you need to go to the respective archival institution's page to create an archival description. For this example, we have decided to work on Italy.

You can find the archival institution either by using the general search box, by using the search box at 'Institutions'...

Throughout the page you will encounter ready-to-fill-in fields and plus-buttons. Once you have clicked on the plus button, new ready-to-fill-in fields will open.

You can create as many fields with the plus button as you need.

To save your description, click on 'Create Archival Description' at the bottom of the page.

Tips & tricks: If you receive an error message when trying to save your description, this may be caused by an open field created by having clicked on a plus button. You will need to close the empty field indicated in red by clicking the X to the right of the respective field.

3.2. Child items

The creation of child items allows you to create a hierarchical structure in your descriptions.

Child Items are held by a parent archival description, therefore you first have to go to the parent archival description page to create a child item description. For this example, we will work on Romania.

4. How to add Creators to Archival Descriptions

It is mandatory to add a creator to every archival description. The creator is the individual, group, or organization that is responsible for the production, accumulation, or formation of the archival collection. Creators are saved under 'Authority sets'.

The first thing to do it to verify whether you can already find the Creator under Historical Agents.

6. How to create *Connections between Originals and Copies

In the EHRI Portal we can create links between the archival institutions which hold the original archival units and the archival institutions, which hold copies of the original archival unit.

Four types of connections between copies and originals can be created:

- Original archival unit – Copy archival unit;
- Original archival institution – Copy archival institution;
- Original archival institution – Copy archival unit;
- Original archival unit – Copy archival institution.

Before you start creating connections, please make sure you are working in your Admin profile. A good idea would be to review the information and tips & tricks described earlier.

6.1. Original archival unit – Copy archival unit

For our first type of connection we will work on linking an original archival unit held in Warsaw, Poland with a Copy collection held in Vilnius, Lithuania.

Once you have identified the copy archival unit you want to connect, go to Actions > Link to another item.

Contains hundreds of memoirs, diaries, and other written accounts created by former prisoners of Majdanek and nearby camps. Most of these accounts were collected as the result of five projects organized by the State Museum of Majdanek from 1965 to 1980. The projects sought to document how the camps and prisons in the Lublin region operated, the help rendered to victims, children, and the history of the camp of KL Majdanek. Some diaries have been published, and some are just copies obtained from other archives. Create Copy Link
